34) Please provide any additional comments or feedback.

256336: This instructor went out of his way to help with our project many times. He is very easy to talk to, and funny to approach!

260668: Colin was on top of things in this class. He kept up with our various emails like a pro and was accommodating when we needed to meet him outside of class. We never had to worry that he may not be available to help us out. For example, I had to miss one class and the students go to the dairy barn and he took over an hour out of his own schedule to take me himself. Colin has a genuine interest in our educational success and goes above and beyond our expectations to guarantee it. I'm sad the class is over!

256190: ENV S 401 was a very enjoyable and rewarding class. It would be nice if there was less focus on systems thinking at the beginning, and more time to work on our projects, there were so many ideas it would have been nice to build on. Overall, Colin was a great prof that really acted like he cared and was involved in our success. He was available to work with us, which I really appreciated. I think the next time this class is offered, there should be a little more focus on individual learning and less on the group learning.

256385: This was a great class, I learned so much about working in a professional environment and I was thrilled with how my groups project turned out. Both instructors provided huge support to our groups and gave us helpful feedback throughout the project. Colin especially was great as a prof. When there was any group conflict instead of fixing it for us he provided us with advice on how to fix it which I appreciate as preparation for the real world. He got just as excited for our project as we were and always seemed genuinely interested in our progress. The dairy barn tour was a good example of systems and even though it started a bit of classroom drama, I think that just further emphasized how systems can be seen from many different angles and it all depends on your personal experiences and beliefs. The assignments were all useful and personally, I liked having a few small projects to take some weight off of the final product. My only complaint was that this class is pretty much the thesis for the environmental science program, this being said, some students in the class took it only for the certificate and I think they look less seriously compared to those who need it to graduate. I do not think we should exclude them from this class because it was great having other perspectives, but the environmental program needs a different class for solely their thesis.

261844: Great course, dynamic subject, good support for students.

256136: Best course I've taken in my 4 years here at the U of S. The instructors really work with the students to get the most out of this course and it shows! All of the students are engaged in the class and I know that I'll be taking away a lot of learned materials directly from this class that will help me in my future endeavours. Thanks for all of your guidance! This class is an absolute MUST for any graduating student. It also made for an awesome way to end out my undergraduate career.

256291: Colin is an awesome professor for this sustainability class. He is always very positive and supportive of the groups and transparent in what he expects of students and how the systems at the U of S work. I found this class very interesting but also on the more fun side of many of the group projects I have done as part of my degree at the U of S. Colin was also very good at communicating with students about ways in which the class can be formatted to work better and was also very good about making it better for students. Colin really cares about this class and his students which is why I wouldn't think twice about nominating him!!Great class, great prof!!

252480: This class, with the class project is a very good idea. It allows the students to make a positive change in the campus community effective. I would suggest that you get the class to think about projects in the first week, bring ideas the second week, and start forming groups in the 2nd-3rd week of class. Groups should be formed as early as possible so that work can get done, due to the waiting game on people such as in FMD...etc etc... I encourage field trips, such as to the recycling complex, see the green roof on the law building etc. Giving the class ideas from previous projects is a really good idea and helpful for form ideas.

249936: Minor class issue: The deliverable list, in which we chose what we would be graded on, and their weights/due dates, seemed a bit relaxed. The deliverable list should have been developed earlier in the class, with built in mechanisms for professors to monitor how each group is either meeting or failing the expectations. I feel without such a mechanism, the projects are subject to biased grading, and groups who are not performing as well as others may receive a similar grade.

255928: Great course to teach you how to tackle challenges and take on things you don't think you can complete to learn how to solve problems.

250850: Great class! Very helpful with issues during term!

249156: This was the best class ever! It helped teach students how to use their skills and try and work towards figuring out a problem on campus or elsewhere and try and make a difference for it. Not only that by Colin was hugely enthusiastic about the projects and making them the best they could ever be. He really encouraged students to take things to the next level to try and amp up their projects also. There was never a moment that he was unavailable to help someone if they needed it.

249575: I really like Colin and his feedback is super helpful. I like that he allows for us to make our own opinion on his class information. He says it like it is and I really respect that. I like how we work in groups and he understands that some people may not pull their weight and helps out. SUPER good class.
